The fall season is an especially busy one, with many events, holidays and of course family obligations. It can be particularly stressful for some individuals as they navigate through those occasions. But we don't have to run ourselves ragged – many hands make light work!

As National Chief-of-Staff Bette Jean Biedrzycki (pronounced Bih-JET-ski) discussed in her second promotion of the year, we should be seeking those "Hidden Talents" in our Auxiliaries:

"Continue engaging members in your Auxiliary's activities and look for ways to put their talents to work. Everyone has a "hidden" talent that can help an Auxiliary thrive. Work with your members to find their hidden talent. This can lead to some unexpected successes for all our members."

Everyone doesn't have to participate in everything happening at your Auxiliary and Post. Encourage and seek out those special skills (hidden talents) and recognize what all members have to offer in some way, large or small. Some folks help with multiple projects; some prefer to focus on what interests them most or works out best within their time constraints. Take the time to ASK about their interests; LISTEN to their answers; and INVOLVE them accordingly! Healthy helpers = a HEALTHY AUXILIARY!

Work hard, be kind, and amazing things will happen!
